Committee Reports and Events.

- Membership Committee—Committee members reminded attendees about dues and said anyone who hasn't paid will receive an email asking them to do so.
- Fundraiser Committee—Committee members reminded people to save the date for the Bunco fundraiser on November 13 from 1 to 4 p.m. at Hollywood House. Immediately after the meeting, several members stayed to learn how to play bunco.
- Location Committee—Committee members are looking for a location to host the December meeting, which is the annual holiday party.

General Business

Two speakers addressed the members

- Julie from the Brookfield Parks & Recreation Department's new foundation spoke about the group's mission to raise money for residents who would like to sign their children up for recreation programs but need financial assistance. The foundation is hosting a kick-off to raise money on Thursday evening, November 3 at Imperial Oak in Brookfield.
- Molly from Beds Plus spoke about opportunities for donating to the organization. Beds Plus provides monetary rental assistance and help in paying utilities to families with financial need, provides temporary housing to homeless people, and helps jobless people find new careers, among other services. The organization is accepting donations for all these services. Currently, a special matching program is available for those who choose to donate specifically to the job program.

Ann and Phyllis updated members on the progress of the Youth Entrepreneur's Fair to be held on November 6 at the Compassion Factory. Several youths in 4th through 12th grade have expressed interest in participating and the event has at least eight volunteers.
